MEMORANDUM FOR: Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, Intelligence
Department of the Army, Washington, D.C.

SUBJECT : Intelligence Review Questionnaire

The Central Intelligence Agency currently receives 64 copies of the Intelligence Review. Ultimate recipients are widely dispersed and their employment of this publication is varied. The following are generalized answers to most of the questions raised. By way of introduction, we call your attention to the fact that your journal is regularly indexed in CIA's Intelligence Publications Index (IPI) which receives IAC-wide distribution.

- a. We can make no estimate of the average number of CIA readers of each copy of the Review. All are intelligence personnel.
- b. The Review serves research, reference and training purposes in this Agency.
- c. The Review is not regularly reproduced, however, the Index referred to above in our opinion promotes wider use of this publication and our Library may copy articles on demand.
- d. No comment.
- e. The bi-monthly schedule of publication is satisfactory. In view of our predominantly research interests, a quarterly schedule would do no harm.
- f. Again, through the Index (IPI) and central library facilities back issues remain useful over an extended period of time, from 3 to 5 years at a minimum.

g & h. Discontinuance would handicap the discharge of a variety of Agency responsibilities
